CALL FOR PAPERS FOR THE 38TH ANNUAL UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA CELTIC STUDIES CONFERENCE

Royce 314, UCLA Campus, March 10-13 (Thursday-Sunday), 2016

We welcome proposals for twenty-minute academic papers on various aspects of Celtic studies. (Ten minutes will be allotted per accepted paper for questions and discussion.) The proposal should be between a paragraph and a full (single-spaced) page, and indicate any AV needs. Proposals should be e-mailed to jfnagy@humnet.ucla.edu and will be accepted until January 4. Authors of proposals that are accepted will be informed by January 15.

Invited presenters include Clodagh Downey (NUI Galway), Rob Dunbar (University of Edinburgh), Eric Falci (UC Berkeley), Aaron Griffith (Utrecht University), Séamus Mac Giolla Chomhaill (Department of Arts, Heritage and the Gaeltacht, ROI), Aidan O’Sullivan (NUI Dublin), David Parsons (Centre for Advanced Welsh and Celtic Studies), and Máirín Seoighe (Scannáin Dobharchú).

The following page provides information about lodgings close to the campus:

http://www.admissions.ucla.edu/tours/accommodations.htm

There will be a welcoming reception Thursday late afternoon in Royce 306 and a conference banquet Saturday evening, venue and price TBA. The preliminary program and further information will be posted on the “events” page of the CMRS website: http://cmrs.ucla.edu/events/. You may also contact Professor Nagy at jfnagy@humnet.ucla.edu or Dr Karen Burgess at kburgess@ucla.edu.

The UCLA Celtic Colloquium and the organizers of this conference gratefully acknowledge the support of the UCLA Center for Medieval and Renaissance Studies, the Department of English, the Indo-European Studies Graduate Program, and the Humanities Division.